ShoppingGuide

“Buy Local” is more than just a trendy buzzword; it’s a much-needed call to action. With big-box stores shipping our hard-earned dollars off to corporate offices hundreds of miles away, independent shop-owners—the economic backbone of our community—are finding it harder and harder to stay in the black. Throw in a recession and the situation becomes even more difficult.

As an independent, locally owned operation, Outside Bozeman magazine knows all too well the challenges facing local small businesses. Which is why we’ve always supported the local business community in the past, and will continue to in the future. We regularly feature articles encouraging our readers to buy local and support their local community. A special directory page offers discounted advertising rates to local independent businesses.
